COMMERCIAL.

HONOLULU, FEBRUARY 22, 1887. Since last week there has been no visible improvement in business. All the retailers complain of dullness in trade, and of course this affects the jobber and importer as well.

The weather has been somewhat boisterous at some of the landings making it extremely difficult to discharge freight or take in sugar. The wreck of the fine brig Selina at the entrance to Hilo bay is noted in full in this On Saturnay, Mr. Levey sold a valuable piece of property on Robello lane, belonging to Mr. Robello, for $2,500, Mr. A. J. Cartwright being the purchaser. To-morrow Mr. Levey will offer two more valuable pieces of real estate at auction also belonging to Mr. Robello. Up to the hour of going to press to-day there was no signs of the samer Mariposa, due Saturday from San Francisco, en ronte for the Colonies. The Jelay is supposed to be the non-arrival of the English mail at San

The Water Front

The foreign arrivals and departures for the week have been light. The coasting fleet, owing to rough weather, have not been able to take in full cargoes at the various landings, some of the vessels returning to port without discharging all of their outward cargo. The arrivals from foreign ports were Am. bark W. H. Dimond from San Fsancisco to W. G. Irwin & Co.; Brit. bark Glengsber, 157 w. G. Irwin & Co.; Brit. bark Glengsber, 167 days from Liverpool, to T. H. Davies & Co., with general merchandise; Am. bark J. C.

Ford, from San Francisco. The whale barks Ohio and Josephine called off the port for supplies, sailing again for cruise on the 16th.
The departures were: 15th, Am. bark John Smith, for San Francisco, with 17, 611 bags sngar; Am. bark Discovery, for San Francisco, with 11,000 bags sngar, 1,400 bags rice, and 200 bunches bananas. The Sweedish bark Drottninger Sophia, after taking in ballast, sailed for Mexico yesterday to load dye woods.

The bark C. O. Whittemore is now loading sugar for San Faancisco and will probably sail this week. The Geo. C. Perkins will commence taking in sugar this week.

The Sonoma will also load sugar following the C. O. Whittemore. The bark W. H. Dimond is promised quick dispatch and will probably sail about Saturday next with a full cargo.

The Martha Fisher proceeds to Portland.

Or., with balance of original cargo.

The Brit, bark Zoila is discharging coal at the Likelike wharf, and the Haw. bark Lady Lampson is also discharging coal at

The Am. bark Ceylon is about due from San Francisco, with general merchandise.

The Am, bark Klikitat from the sound with lumber is due.

The splendid steamship, City of Rio de Janeiro, of the Pacific Mail line, is due here on the 12th of March, en route for Hong Kong. Her accommodations for all classes of passengers are of a superior order. Messrs-H. Hackfeld & Co are her agents here. The bark Kate Flickenger is receiving sugar the Coast, and will probably sail to-day with about 14,000 bags.

Captain Clarke, of the steamer Lehns, reports bringing 60 head of cattle from Mahucona, which were landed at Kaboolawe. The Lehna had also about 2,500 bags of sugar for this port, which was transferred to the W. H. The Kinau had 7,500 bags of sugar from Mahukona besides other freight. The Kilauea Hou 4,000 from Ookala and Paauhau; the Surprise 3,000 bags from Kuau, Maui.

MAUNA LOA'S SUMMIT.

A Visit to Makuaweoweo-

Kapapala, Kau, Hawaii, Feb. 12, '87. Editor Gazette.—The erst fountain of fire playing above Kahuku, which I visited Jan. 29th, I found to be, per aneroid, 5,600 feet above sea level, while Pele Kahuku, or the upper Mauna Loa out-crop of this same fountain, I found to be, per arenoid, 11,500 feet; reaching it, as I did, Feb: 9th. This last, Pele Kahuku, (which I so name to designate it) is a fissure in the very ancient as of the mountain side :- so ancient as to have been changed by disintegration into friable brick and brick dust;-the fissure in question being some 14 of a mile in length and the line of it pointing directly from the top of Manna Loa to Hale Pahoehoe, (otherwise called Keau Hill) where the flow proper broke out and ran wholly above ground. Along this fissure were issuing, when I was there, heat, steam and sulphurous smoke, and the margin of it coated with sulphurous de posits and a good deal of pure sulphur; while on either side of it was a width of fresh, crumpled pahoehoe, showing the recent issu-ance thereat, of liquid fire. The crack rehill and even cut into the base of it, so that to follow the line of rent, one had to mount up the side of the hill. From this upper emergence to the surface of the Kabuku flow of 1887, was an unobstructed view of the cone, with its associate cones, 15 or 20 miles makai, near or at which spectators at the Kahuku Ranch, beheld that column of liquid redness, which kept itself high in the air for some 14 days. Standing by this upper rent, the beholder perceives at a glance, from Pele Kahuku above to Hale Pahoehoe below, the liquid fire pursued a subterranean channel. Pele Kahuku and Pohakuohanalei are at almost the same altitude and distant from each other only a mile or so. Pele Kahuku begins a mile more or less, much to the west towards Kona from Pohakuohanalei. Moknaweoweo was heavily smoking in the central portion of it, as I found on reaching it Feb. 10th. A rent or chasm having formed in the floor of the crater, which beginning near the middle of the floor, extended towards, and disappeared under the western wall: the general line of the chasm being in the direction of Kahuku, and the chasm itself margined by fresh pahoehoe, which appeared to have been spit up from below, creating in one place a small cone. Mokua-weoweo, altitude 13,500 feet (so said aneroid) le Kahuku 11,500 feet and Hale Pahoehoe (Keau Hill) 5,600 feet, appeared to have been the three points where the Mauna Loa lava flow of 1887 forsook its subterranean viaduct and betook itself to the earth's surface. The winter I encountered in upper Mauna Loa was simply terrible. Striking snow, as I did, at an altitude of 11,000 feet, I traversed an unbroken stretch of snow, of from 12 to 15 miles in length and breadth. Deep, I can tell you; in some places 20 feet, in others feet, in others one foot, in others still having no depth at all, (lava outcropping); the general or average depth being about three feet—the crust of it kindly bore up the exulting pedestrian, who made good time as he skimmed over the surface of it. O ye New England boys who love sliding down hill, (I, of them) and Canadians who love tob ganning, hie ye to the summit of Mauna Los and take thence a 10 mile slide southwards from, say, Mokuaweoweo to Pohakuohanalei, only bringing up at the snow line upon the sharp and terrible as, would ye find your-selves essentially damaged at last. EDWARD P. BAKER.

Kohala Items.

Konala, February 18, 1887. On the morning of Wednesday, February 16th, the trash houses of Halawa Sugar Com-pany was discovered in flames, and before an hour had passed were burned to the ground. Manager Wells discovered the fire, and says it started near the top of the middle house, and was evidently the work of an in-cendiary. A recently discharged German is the suspected party. The mill had not been grinding more than five minutes when the fire broke out, and there being no wind to speak of, the chances of sparks from the chimney being the cause of the conflagration are very slim. Halawa Mill has been working for some weeks now, its new machinery running in first-class order. It is about two years since the first trash-house fire occurred at Halawa. Star Mill's new chimney stands out, forming a feature of the landscape, and the smoke coming from its mouth, as we'l as the almost continuous toot, toot of its whistle, would indicate that great things are being done there. Mr. E. G. Hitchcock has come to Kohala to live, and will practice law here. This is indeed good news, for the foreigners have heretofore been under the necessity of employing native lawyers to get them out of their difficulties, there being no white member of the legal frateruity in Kohala. competent respectable lawyer would build up a good practice here in a short time. How is this? I bear that the salary of Postmaster here has been cut down. Why? There is no less work attached to the office than before, and the former salary was con-sidered only fair for a place like Kobala. If it is done to show condemnation of past offenses, it is hardly the square thing to ponish the present incumbent for faults of his predecessor. Sad tales are told of rum adrinking and opium smoking at Hawi. Who has a license to sell opium here; or, rather, who is there to give these smokers a license to use the deadly drug? One rarely goes out that he does not encounter one or more drunken fellows, generally Hawaiians. The Chinese are seldom seen upon the road in an inebriated condition, but the Portuguese are evidently fond of the flowing bowl.

What is this story about the King becoming the head of a Board of Foreign Missions? We hear strange rumors from Honolula, all about evil omens, kahunas, the Royal Family being in bad odor with the gods, and many other direful tales. Surely no one would be so disloyal as to anaana the head of the Government. O, treason! Perish the thought !

Are you tired of roads? So are we; that is of ours. Their condition evidently does not prey upon the mind of our Road Supervisor, for we meet him every day looking as hearty and free from care as his best friends could wish. There are several spots where the driver halts as between Scylla and Charybdis, unce thin which side to choose bog on one side, and almost a certainty of sticking fast, and water on the other, with almost the same certainty of a capsize. The hole into which cane trash was thrown, with the remark that it would be cleaned out as soon as carting was done, it is needless to say, has not been cleaned out. No one be-lieved it would be, for the same thing has been done before, and the trash left to rot and scent the air and prevent the drying up of the water. The approach to the present Postoffice, toe, is another slough of despond. How long?

CAPT. WM. MATSON'S REPORT. "Came in with fresh breeze from northeast, arrived at entrance of Hilo harbor at 5 p. m. There, the wind hauled to southeast and was obliged to tack. After tacking, stood out about half way through the channel when the wind died out and it became a dead calm. Dropped the large anchor (port anchor). In a few moments after a heavy squall sprang up from the northeast, and we parted one chain, then we immediately let go starboard anchor which chain also parted. Got out large boat to land passengers in but found we were so close to the breakers that I ordered the sailors in her to shove off or they would get swamped. Saved one baby in this boat but could not get any of the other pas-sengers into it. The passengers consisted of five ladies and two gentlemen.

Where we drifted ashore there was a per endicular cliff of about one hundred and fifty feet in height, so got one of my men to swim ashore and make a line fast to a rock at the foot of the cliff. Then passed the passengers ashore by rigging a bowline. Next morning I found the bottom of the vessel about all gone, so cut away the main mast in order to keep the vessel from swaying so I could land the live stock. Found ship on fire it having been set on fire by lime and hay. I saw I could do nothing to save the vessel, so ordered her sold, but not before I had used every means in my power to sive the vessel and cargo. Had very heavy breakers at the time. Struck the reef at about 7p. m.'

Special mention should be made of the energy and bravery of Rexford Hitchcock in landing passengers; he, going and returning with each one across the swinging rope and around the base of the cliffs, through the tre-mendous serf—a hazardous undertaking in daylight, doubly so in the storm-black night. Note must be made of the disgraceful mob of native men and boys who over an the vessel in spite of the presence of officers (in accord) and stole every available article in the cabin and forecastle. Some of the crew had every article of clothing stolen by toe unscrupulous knaves. Credit is due to Judge Lyman, who stopped many of them at the top of the cliff and made them unload their

Stabbing Affray at Koolau.

On Wednesday last at Punaluu, Koolau, Edward John Oahu, a stabbing affray occurred, in which Evenger, Chas Capt. Dan McGregor, of the schooner Manuokawai, is charged with cutting ore of his sailors, named Kanaina, in the left side just below the region of the heart. From the accounts to hand, it seems that "all hands and the cook" were having "a good time" at the house of one Kuaii, at Punain. The Grub, Chas Green, Miss Goodel, Rev. the house of one Kuaii, at Punaut. The cutting was evidently the result of imbibing too much okoleinto, but who was in fault at Gordon, Geo F (2) present does not appear. Upon learning the news of this afiray, Marshal Kaulukou last no time in communicating with the officers at Koolau, directing them to look after the wounded man, and see that he had medical attendance. A warrant was issued for the arrest of Capt. McGregor, and a police officer dispatched to Waikane, where the schooner was then lying. On the arrival of the officer at that place the vessel had sailed for Honoshe arrived early Friday morning, and Capt.

the authorities. On Friday morning McGregor was brought before the Police Justice, and remanded for one week, awaiting the arrival of the wounded man, and the nature of his injuries. Eail was refused in the List, August Captain's case. Later news states that the Ludwig, Hermann man's wound is not likely to prove fatal, and the Marshal fixed the bail at $1,000. Mt. A. C. Smith appeared for Capt. McGregor. The following certificate, as to the state of the wounded sailor, has been received by Marshal Kaulukou:

KANBOHE, February 18, 1881. This is to certify that I examined Kanaina, at Punaluu, on February 17th, and found him suffering from a penetrating wound of the chest. The wound is in the neighborhood of the sixth costal cartilege-about one and one-half inches to the left of the median line, and is about three-fourths of an inch long. It is said to have been made by a pocket-knife, and to have penetrated about one inch. The wound does not appear to be very serious, but it is in a dangerous locality, and there is a possibility of a fatal result. C. B. WOOD, M. D.

The Lava Flow of 1887

Mr. Furneaux, the artist has beer exhibiting his great picture of the Lava Flew of 1887 at his studio, Fort street. A large number of people have visited the rooms and expressed themselves as highly gratified with this ex-cellent work of art. The view is from the deck of the steamer W. G. Hall, and represents the spur of Mauna Loa, down which two distinct rivers of fire are dessending to the sea, on the edge of which there are hissing steam and bursting gasses. On the summit is seen the column of lava at a white heat, a most striking object. Above is the well-known volcanic cloud, so common to all our eruptions, this is in many parts of a blood red and gives light to the whole scene. The swelling bosom of the Pacific is admirably rendered, looking glassy andweird with its crimson reflections and blue-black shadows. In the foreground to the ight are the dark cliffs of Ka Kae, the southermost point of Hawaii. Mr. Furneaux has treated a most difficult subject with great skil, and this greatest praise mus he is the unanimous approval of all the e who actually saw the flow. They say that if anything, the crilliance of the flame is not strong enough. The picture is no exaggeration of one of natue's grandest works. Mr. Furneaux is always pleased to see any one, and besides the great picture, there are many views of interest about the Islands to be looked at. A very deasont half bonr can be spend in the studio

Lava Flowing Again.

A Hilo correspondent writes: Thursday forenoon Feb. 17th, the top of Mauna Loa is very distinctly seen from Hilo, and a large stream of laws is now flowing from a little south of the summit towards Kau. Its cone is distinctly marked by the dense column of smoke and steam ascending for a long dis-

The Mauna Los is covered with snow and the jets of smoke and steam present a view to the beholder never to be forgotten. The stream is on the eastern or rather the south eastern slope of the mountain, starting from a point some 5 miles south-east of the summit. The snow banks on the ridge can be seen beyond the flow looking from Hilo.

Another correspondent says:—The flow as predicted has again broken out and this time very near if not exactly on the spot of the 1855-80 flows. It is now following down the Kau arm or, nearly in that direction, of the 1880 flows and of course is just as likely to make another break down this side of the mountain towards us, as it did in 1880-81. When it broke out we can't say, as it has been so dark with clouds that we have not seen the mountain for several days. We had a smart shock of earthquake yesterday, about 1 p. m., which may have been the time it

I take this all to be so, on account of the long line of smoke going down the mountain side as it did in 1880.
